

Spb TV

Over 100 channels of mobile TV in a single application

Since the creation of the smartphone mobile TV has been an inevitable goal, however until now attempts to launch it have proven unsuccessful. Spb TV represents the best attempt yet. It comes with over 100 TV channels from 17 countries around the world (and a smaller number that can be used permanently in the unregistered demo). It is brilliantly designed, with a carousel that enables you to scroll through the available stations, and a superb picture-in-picture mode that allows you to watch one channel while seeing what else is available. There is also a TV guide showing programmes, where supported by the network.

Spb TV is very smooth in use, taking into account the speed of your network connection (and will also adjust for fluctuations in speed). The quality of the content inevitably varies, but there are plenty of English language channels (including BBC News) that provide enough of a diversion, perhaps especially when overseas. Ensure you have a flat-rate data package if you are using this over 3G, or preferably use Wi-Fi. The version on our CD is for Windows Mobile, but a version for Symbian S60 devices can be downloaded from www.spbsoftwarehouse.com.
